

DIRECTIONS

The National STEM Centre is situated on the University of York campus, co-located with the National Science Learning Centre.

We very strongly recommend that you use public transport to get to the Centre.

Parking at the University is extremely limited. It is significantly easier to arrive by train and then to take a bus/taxi.

By car

The building is located on the University of York campus next to the North Car Park, at the top of Siwards Way.

However, parking at the University can often be extremely difficult during office hours and you may find that the North Car Park is full (pay and display £6.00 per day). A change machine is located within our building if required.

Alternative car parks are available on campus, but please be advised that these may be a significant walking distance from the Centre.

By train

If you are arriving by train you may either take a bus (No. 4) or a taxi from York Station. Journey time will vary depending on time of day, but should not be longer than twenty minutes.

By taxi

Ask for North Car Park, Siwards Way (the National Science Learning Centre and Hull/York Medical School building signs are visible from the car park). Fare is approximately £7.00.

By bus

The number 4 bus service runs from the railway station to the University every ten minutes. Fare to the Centre is approximately £3.50 return/ £2.00 single. The scheduled journey time from the railway station to the University Campus at Heslington is twenty minutes. (Please note that there are two flights of steps from the bus stop to the Centre building.)

Get off at bus stop 2, and go up the steps to your left. Follow the signs for Hull/York Medical School. Take the path to the left of Freshers Cafe, continue past the bicycle shed, and go up the steps to the North Car Park. The Centre building is in front of you.
